This latest offering by Claudio Casanueva really caught me off guard, whilst the initial opening foray of this new single Lordterra was classic Casanueva, the female vocalisations and steady but purposeful build, felt like we were going on a whole new trip.

This would turn out to be totally true, this new release is a master class of just how to put together a truly fantastic new age single, the build and progression in this new release is stunningly crafted, and at the last few minutes taking us to a place never really visited before with the artist, as lush female vocals and some amazing keyboard work with pertinent percussion, took us hand in hand into what is known to many as the chill out genre, what a really clever track this is, and surely has to be a guaranteed super hit with ease.
