Eric Chapelle is back with a brand new single entitled Paper Flags and the Wind, this is one of the shortest singles I have reviewed at just short of 90 seconds, but in that time the artists creates an eastern ethic with the percussive element entwined within the composition, a smooth and classy almost global ethic on piano, and all mixed with a transformative back drop of sounds.

Chapelle has created something here that is incredibly addictive to listen to, I am on my 4th visit to its temple of sound as I speak, and this mild mannered, descriptive single, with its lightness of touch and cheer filled tempo, is just bound to capture your hearts as well.
