Joseph L Young is on a roll at the moment and Secrets of Stone is the latest single the artist has out at the moment, the sax here drives a mysterious tale indeed, and the spiritual vocalisations doubly so. One could imagine brushing aside vines on a trail and coming across an old temple or even an ancient castle.

The rhythmic nature of the track is also well crafted and works sublimely with the added instrumentation, there is a delicious hovering intensity about this composition that makes it both addictive to listen to, and undeniably brilliant. I am sure this will be a huge success for the artist.
