Reclining is the latest single by musician Stephen Weber and is one of the finest examples of ambient solo piano I have heard for quite a while. I spent a wonderful Wednesday afternoon listening to this on repeat, and it allowed a beautiful sense of freedom and relaxation to enter into my life.

This performance is like waking to the sun streaming in through the bedroom window on a lazy Sunday morning; it is as easy and as laid back as an April afternoon is on the heart of the artist's palette.

This maybe a short form musical narrative, but it is most certainly one solo piano performance I shall remember fondly for many years to come.
