

Right Now

By

Richard Dillon

Written by

Steve Sheppard

Richard Dillon has been on one heck of a roll lately with both albums and singles and that's not going to stop any time soon.

We must be grateful as he is composing some quite amazing compositions, and bringing to our attention some quite breath taking new singles, like this brand new offering entitled Right Now. A song that states it's time to care right now and a song that is perfect for the current state of the planet, we need to drop the fear and care and when? Well Right Now of course.

Dillon includes the vocal talents of Timothy Twa, in a truly pleasant modern style with an all important message for us all. I adore the arrangement and composition of this track; the lyrics are so very poignant, so much so, that perhaps we should send copies of it to all of our world leaders to listen to.

Dillon is his stylish self on piano, and is gradually showing that he is perhaps one of the foremost piano based composers and pianists of the 21st century with ease, listen also to the delicious violin provided by Carolyn Wills, simply heavenly, in a single that is lovingly heartfelt and quite beautiful.