Living where I do, in the very heart of the Mediterranean, this is right down my alley, and listening to this beautifully chilled offering, as I do now in 30c temperatures with the palm trees swaying against a backdrop of blues skies, it is simply perfection.

Annie Locke has created something here that anyone from the region, from Spain to Cyprus, would find appealing and very topical. The performances are sublime, with Annie Locke's calming narrative on piano and Paul Landry's scene setting acoustic guitar, all creating a wonderful pastiche of calm.

This has been released at the perfect time as summer has landed here in the Mediterranean; the soothing narrative is a perfect musical accompaniment to an afternoon in your favourite taverena sampling olives and village wine, simply blissful indeed, Spanish Sojourn gets a bravo from me.
