I first started playing this single this morning and found that the entire duration of my experience had passed me by and I hadn't written a single word, I was so entranced by the music and where it took me, I was lost forevermore within its beauty.

Moonlight over the Garden is a truly beautiful moment of musical magic that you never want to end, with gentle flowing acoustic guitar being the master narrator and a soft but imploring flute adding to this dimension of sound and tone.

To say this single by Vens is impressive would not be doing it justice, I rate this to be one of the most appealing and addictive tracks I have heard in this so called new age genre for quite a while, and one I am more than happy to recommend.
