

Fall Leaves, Fall

By

Kirsten Agresta Copley

Written by

Steve Sheppard

There has always been something so very magical about the harp and here on this new single entitled Fall Leaves, Fall, Kirsten Agresta Copley has manifested something not only magical, but very redolent of the subject matter at this time of year.

Autumn is a ripe bed of musical riches for any artist, and here Kirsten Agresta Copley draws us a musical narrative on harp that has a rich weave of melodic brilliance deep within its tender arrangement. Her performance is both mystical and enchanting, here is a single you could leave on repeat for hours and never get bored with it.

Agresta Copley's work on this track has to be admired and respected, and gives us a little excited insight as to what maybe on her forth-coming album next year, called Around the Sun.