It is strange indeed, I had speculated for a while about the likely-hood of these two combining to bring us something sparkingly brilliant in the realm of music, and it has happened.

The percussive genius of Graeme Drum and the effervescent energies of Tri Nguyen and his magical Zither have indeed now combined. I am now extremely glad that this symbiotic partnership has manifested itself, as it has brought us one of the most exciting world music singles that has been released for some time.

The stylish performances by both Drum and Nguyen give us the excited listener a perfectly paced track, one filled with a strong sense of movement and a passionate composition that has both a sensual rhythm and a masterful manifestation of an addictive global vibe; Walking is world music at its very, very best.
